

Employment Edge 71st Edition - Reminder to employers regarding EEO-1 Reports

September 01, 2006

Private employers with 100 or more employees and some government contractors with 50 or more employees must file the Employer Information Report (EEO-1) annually. The EEO-1 requires employers to provide a count of their employees by job category and then by ethnicity, race and gender. Certain federal contractors are also required to complete the Veterans Employment Report (VETS-100) annually. Both the EEO-1 and the VETS-100 can be completed online and must be filed by September 30. For more information about filing the EEO-1 online go to <http://www.eeoc.gov/eeo1survey/index.html>. For more information about filing the VETS-100 online go to <http://www.vets100.com/>.

Next year, for the reporting period due September 30, 2007, employers must use the revised EEO-1. The revised EEO-1 contains several changes to the ethnic and racial categories in which employers must list their employees. First, the revised EEO-1 will add a new ethnic and racial category titled "Two or more races." Second, the revised EEO-1 will divide "Asian or Pacific Islander" into two separate categories ("Asian" and "Native Hawaiian or other Pacific Islander"). Third, the revised EEO-1 will rename "Black" as "Black or African American" and rename "Hispanic" as "Hispanic or Latino." Finally, the revised EEO-1 will strongly endorse employee self-identification of race and ethnic category, as opposed to visual identification by employers. In addition, the revised EEO-1 will divide the current job category of "Officials and Managers" into two levels based on responsibility and influence within the organization. These two levels will be "Executive/Senior Level Officials and Managers" and "First/Mid-Level Officials and Managers." Although these changed reporting requirements are a year away, employers may wish to begin planning for their implementation now.
